Village Awaits State Appr. on New Deep Water Well Project

Petition to Block Moving of House from High School Is Tabled

Because the Illinois State Water Board has not yet given its approval, no action could be taken by the village board Tuesday evening in executing the plans and specifications for the new deep well and mains.

David Miller, engineer for the village, completed the plans and specifications for the project, and gave copies to the board, but advised the board not to take any action until the state gives approval.

Indications were that the state will answer tomorrow and if it does, and approval is given, the board will meet next Monday or Tuesday to advertise for bids.

"We are anxious to get going," said President James McMillen.

Site of the water well will be east of the Soo Line tracks on village property back of the Little League baseball diamond. From there, mains will connect with the village system.

The board took no action on the plat of Antioch Heights subdivision submitted by William Hattendorf. Only question raised by the trustees was the sewer system arrangement.

Petition Placed on File

Also accepted and filed without other action was a petition bearing 11 names seeking to prevent the moving of the two-story frame house from the high school grounds to Chestnut street west of the Walter Dibble property. The school board recently auctioned off the building which is to be removed to make way for a parking area. The owner wants to move it to the nearby site, but the neighbors said it would not harmonize with the one-story buildings surrounding it.

Village trustees said that as long as it was not a fire hazard and met building specifications they would not prevent it being moved to a new location, all other rules being complied with.

The Illinois Bell Telephone Co. was given permission to run its cables under ground across Orchard street now being paved.

Whether or not the board meets on the water well matter, it will have to meet soon to make the appropriations for the coming year. In this procedure the board stipulates amounts that can be paid for services and projects. Afterward it will set forth its levy of taxes to pay for these expenses.

Memorial Day Parade, Service Successful Under Ideal Weather

Under ideal weather conditions, Antioch was able to observe Memorial Day with fitting services commemorating those who gave their lives for their country.

The parade was the largest in recent years and all organizations who responded to the call to take part were well represented.

Because of the large number of visitors in the village for the holiday crowds lined the streets to watch the parade.

With the cannon platform in the village park serving as a speaker's rostrum, the program was conducted before a large audience.

Lt. Cmdr. Guy T. Nusbaum, chaplain at Great Lakes Naval Training Center, gave the principal address. He reminded his audience that as he spoke there were many boys from the United States carrying on the battle for which those who gave their lives were being honored.

Gold Star mothers were honored and given the privilege of laying the wreath in memory of the war dead.

Antioch Busy Place Over Double Holiday No Accident Reports

Resort Business Good With Fine Weather; Fishing Improves

Antioch was a crowded place over the week end.

The double holiday brought thousands of visitors from the city to the nearby lakes and traffic over Rte. 21 into Wisconsin was heavy. Police Chief Walter Scott said that traffic problems started Friday when shoppers flocked to the stores in getting supplies for Saturday and Sunday. The stores were closed the two days.

Many industries were closed on Friday in the cities and this brought vacationers to the resorts a day early.

The Sunday crowd was not so large and traffic was spaced out more. There wasn't the last minute rush that so often occurs when Chicago people stay late and try to get home at one time. No accidents were reported in this area.

Resort owners said that the cold spring has cut down business under what it was last year, Saturday was up to par. Business at the resorts will not be at its best until after the Chicago schools are dismissed.

Fishermen say that pan fish have commenced to bite. Because of the cold spring only such fish as bass and northern pike were biting, but with warmer weather crappies and bluegills have commenced.

I. Onstad, Mrs. O. R. Kresse, Mrs. Fern Lux, Mrs. Elmer Hunter, and Miss Belle Richards. Friends of the Tuttle family, regardless of church membership, may attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Tuttle came to Antioch in August, 1947, intending to stay two years while he studied for the ministry at Garrett Institute, Evanston. He was ordained in this conference.

Friendships here and a liking for the church caused them to stay six years. Their three children, James, 5½, John, 3½, and David, 1½, were all born here.

During the six years they have been here the church has seen a decided growth. The membership has doubled, a $50,000 educational unit has been added, Youth Fellowships, two adult groups, and a men's club have been formed, and the Church School has doubled its membership.

Washington is the home state of both Mr. and Mrs. Tuttle. His father is a Methodist preacher there.

Local Group Supports Channel 11 TV Fund

Plans have been made this week for the support of the educational television station for Channel 11 by a local group of citizens headed by high school principal Albert Dittman. The group will attempt to inform the Antioch community of the educational advantages of the station and urge families to support the project with financial funds.

Scores of communities located in the Chicago area have been busy with their campaigns in behalf of the educational television station. State and federal funds will not be used. Nor is it the policy of the sponsors to seek such funds for capital or operating purposes.

It is believed that the soundest basis for building and maintaining Channel 11 is to depend primarily on citizens served by the station, rather than upon state or federal funds. It is further expected that in two years the value of Channel 11 will be so well established that adequate funds for its continued operation and expansion will be provided by the public and participating institutions.

The Chicago Educational Television Association, which is spearheading the Channel 11 drive in Chicago area is under the direction of Edward L. Ryerson, chairman of the executive committee of the Inland Steel company, got a late start in waging the campaign. But substantial progress is being made. Channel 11 needs $100,000 to start and run a station for two years.

Channel 11 programs will aim to enlighten, instruct, inspire and entertain—to explore in a new fresh way all the richness of knowledge that lies in the world around us.

Donley Feddersen from Northwestern University met Wednesday evening with a group of local citizens and discussed "Educational Television in the Chicago Area."

Dr. H. P. Maxwell Gives Stirring Address to 66 Graduates

Eleven hundred citizens of the Antioch community attended the thirty-eighth graduation exercises conducted by the local high school Monday evening in the spacious new gymnasium.

Sixty-six graduates received their diplomas from the president of the board of education Fred Scott. A sixty-seventh diploma will be sent to Charlene Powles who left school early to be with her family in Japan. Mr. Scott also presented a diploma to Gene Ray Nickerson. This diploma was granted on the basis of the successful scores achieved on the General Educational Development tests while Mr. Nickerson was in the armed forces.

The Reverend John Barbee of the Lake Villa Baptist church delivered the invocation. The mixed chorus of eighty high school boys and girls sang three lovely numbers—"One World," "Halls of Ivy," and "While We're Young." E. E. Ruffolo, music director, directed the group.

Asst. Principal E. W. Edwards introduced the commencement speaker, Dr. H. Phillip Maxwell.

Dr. Maxwell used as the substance of his message the content of an imaginary letter he wrote to his daughter, Barbara, at the time of her graduation from Evanston High school a few years ago.

Unable to attend the service he composed a letter of advice in which he set forth the qualities he regarded as necessary for success and these he gave to the Antioch graduates as he would have given them to his own child.

They included such virtues as honesty, responsibility, perseverance, and above all a faith in God. It was a stimulating address and scores of parents and friends commended Dr. Maxwell on his message.

Principal A. L. Dittman presented the graduating class to Mr. Scott for their diplomas.

The program was concluded with the audience singing the national anthem.

Economic Highlights

Most people believe that this country needs and will continue to need a large and up-to-the-minute Merchant Marine, in the interest of the national economy and the national defense. Back in 1936 Congress passed the Merchant Marine Act, which was designed to foster the development of a merchant fleet second to none. A typical top-level observation was offered last year by President Eisenhower, in these words, "America's industrial prosperity and military security both demand that we maintain a privately operated Merchant Marine adequate in size and of modern design to insure that our lines of supply for either peace or war will be safe. I consider the Merchant Marine to be our fourth arm for defense."

Relatively few people, in all probability, know how matters stand with the American Merchant Service today—or have much knowledge of the problems that surround it. An excellent brief resume of the situation is found in a booklet just published by the Committee of American Shipping Lines Serving Essential Foreign Trade Routes, entitled, "What's the Score on American Shipping?"

Today, some 600 active privately-owned American ships operate exclusively in foreign trade between the U. S. and the rest of the world. That is an impressive figure, but the outlook for the future is definitely on the bleak side. More than 800 freighters and almost 100 passenger ships are on order or being built for world trade by other maritime nations. But not one ocean-going passenger or cargo ship is being built for private U. S. ownership, and only a handful have been built since the last world war. Most of our existing ships will be obsolete in a short span of years.

What is the ship replacement problem? According to the Committee, it is two-fold: "First, along with other prices shipbuilding costs are inflated. Most shipowners have been unable to accumulate sufficient reserves of their own to replace their fleets. . . . Second, the degree to which government can participate in shipbuilding through making construction equality payments authorized under the 1936 Act has become uncertain and confused." This uncertainty, which has resulted from conflicts of policy and interpretation in interested government agencies, has made it extremely difficult and in many cases impossible to negotiate firm contracts for ship construction.

The Committee thoroughly refutes the idea that government payments to the shipping lines have guaranteed all expenses plus a profit. The shipowner is not assured a profit—and if his earnings permit he must pay back all or part of the government funds advanced to him. The government payments have but one purpose: to put the American essential foreign trade route operator on a competitive basis with the merchant fleets of other maritime powers. Our construction, maintenance and operating costs are far higher than those of our foreign competitors. The pay, living and working standards of our crews are incomparably the best on the high seas. Without government payments successful competition with the foreign lines would manifestly be impossible—and our fleet would dwindle away to nothing.

The committee proposes a broad positive program for American shipping, involving government shipping industry cooperation. It asks for the development of a workable formula for the use of government funds in ship construction that will end the present uncertainties. Its purpose is the orderly and progressive replacement of cargo and cargo-passenger vessels, which would be financed as much as possible by private enterprise, and which would be constructed so as to permit quick conversion for military uses. The Committee clearly feels that quick action on this and related problems is necessary.

Gross Roots Opinion

PROVIDENCE, KY., JOURNAL-ENTERPRISE: "Recently President Eisenhower . . . spoke with delight of the pickle jar and the cracker barrel found in most general stores when he was growing up. . . . It may be that . . . a man will occupy the White House who will recall the days when he rode through a super market in a four-wheeled shopping basket."

OSKALOOSA, IOWA, DAILY HERALD: "The trimming down that for years was mainly talk is now getting under way at last . . . Whether or not it points to a balanced budget, and then a start on tax relief in the fiscal year beginning July 1, it does carry the promise of action long delayed."

LAKE WORTH, FLA., HERALD: "The claim that opening the (relief) rolls to the public will embarrass recipients of aid, apparently is made more to cover up the chiselers . . . than to actually protect the deserving poor. It might be added there is no record of embarrassment occurring where the rolls have been opened to the public but there has been considerable improvement in the reduction of funds wantonly spent in the wrong direction."

Happy Combination

From the health standpoint, meat is a first class buy.

The average American, according to a Department of Agriculture study, spends 24 per cent of his food budget for meat. The meat he gets in return for this expenditure supplies 63 per cent of the necessary protein, 47 per cent of the necessary food iron, 28 per cent of the necessary phosphorus, 42 per cent of the necessary vitamin B1, 24 per cent of the necessary vitamin B2, 79 per cent of the necessary niacin and substantial amounts of other B vitamins.

The importance of substantial meat consumption of mental and physical vigor has been proved beyond question in recent years. Much was learned during World War II, when it was found that the strength and endurance of American fighting men resulted in large part from the high meat content in the diet adopted by the services. And medical studies and experiments have shown that meat is of direct and lasting benefit to people suffering from a long list of illnesses—including some that, in past days, were believed to require a diet containing little or no meat.

Almost everyone likes meat—and meat is good for almost everyone. That makes a happy combination of circumstances.

years ago. Such controversial issues as the proposed amendment to the Judicial Article, Senatorial reapportionment, truck license legislation, the Broyles bills, and others are still on the agenda.

The Legislature is much too independent of the executive branch to expect clear sailing even of the so-called "administration" bills.

Nevertheless, "administration" bills have a big edge when considering what chance a bill has of passage. The same may be said of bills sponsored by the various code departments. Aid to these should be added the dozens of bills resulting in mere formal revisions of the statutes which are prepared by the Legislative Reference Bureau between sessions. Such bills are rarely defeated.

Accordingly, a bill which is not supported by the Governor nor any department head has far less than a 50 per cent chance of passage—and much more than a 10 per cent chance of being vetoed, even if passed.

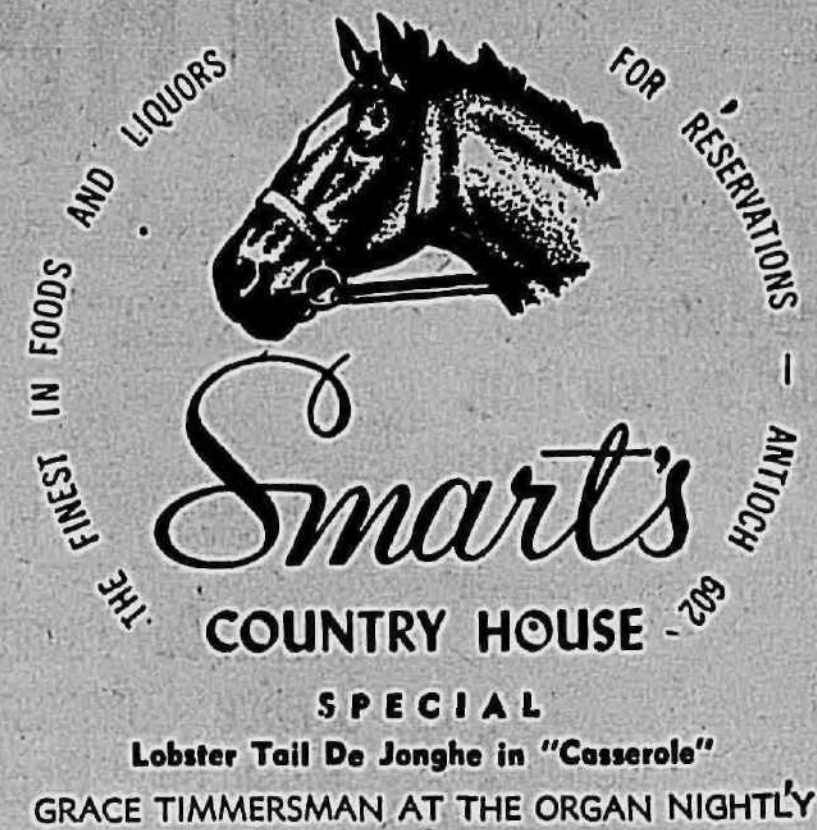

But since about half of the bills will not even be finally acted upon until the last week in June many tense moments of anxious waiting remain.

Only one thing is 100 per cent certain—the 68th General Assembly will end June 30 at midnight—by the clock, that is.

OUR STATE SENATOR SAYS

By State Senator Robert McClory

Are you worried about a bill pending in the Illinois General Assembly? There is a less than 50-50 chance it will be passed, and a more than 10 per cent chance that, if passed, it will be vetoed.

These assumptions are based upon a study of what has occurred in prior sessions of the state legislature. For instance, in the 1951 session a total of 2044 bills were introduced out of which 1040 were passed. Of this total former Governor Stevenson vetoed 134 measures.

However, this does not look like a record-breaking year for bill introductions as only about 1300 measures have been presented so far, and but five weeks remain until adjournment. Up to the present time less than 150 bills have passed both houses. But everything appears to be on schedule. Nevertheless, something might be said about a schedule which results in the passage of about half of a six months total of bills in the last few days.

For instance, in the 1951 session only 15 per cent of the bills were passed during the five month period between January 1st and June 1st, although the legislature was meeting every week. Then, in the last month 85 per cent of the bills were passed—47 per cent during the last five days of the session. However, this was no record for late passage of bills. In the 1921 session 315 bills out of a total of 361 for the session were acted upon during the last 72 hours before adjournment.

It appears that the final weeks of the 68th Illinois General Assembly will be equally as hectic as those which were experienced two

SHORT STORY

Barry Takes A Train

By Herbert McKenna

BARRY knew that he didn't have a chance with Diane Humphrey, but he couldn't resist being with her while the opportunity offered.

Diane was the daughter of Justin Humphrey, who owned the mine in Mexico where Barry, as a young engineer just out of college, was employed.

This much Barry found out from young Paul Darrell. Darrell was Barry's companion worker, a tall, flashily handsome youth, the son of a wealthy New York broker.

Darrell's flippancy awoke resentment in Barry. But he reproached himself for his annoyance. He hadn't any right to feel anything, or care what Diane did or whom she married. True, she had been nice to him since she had arrived with her father on his annual visit.

"You love it here, don't you, Barry?"

The second night they had danced together three times at the celebration. Two days later, Sunday, under the guise of being polite to the boss' daughter, he had asked her to go riding with him.

After that their trips into the hills or visits to the mine or strolls through the quaint Mexican village were regular things. But Barry didn't kid himself any. He knew that she enjoyed herself with him because there wasn't any one else.

No, Barry didn't kid himself. And he told himself four or five times every day that he wasn't falling in love. It wouldn't make any difference to him at all when her visit ended and she went back to New York. But when the time came he felt like the devil. He wasn't even at the train to see her off. They said goodnight, casually, indifferently, the evening before. Barry let her think he'd be at the train the next day. But he wasn't.

Old Justin wasn't due at the mine again for another year, but for some reason he broke this rule and came down in September. Diane was with him.

"Hello, pardner," she called gaily. "For goodness' sake don't stand there like a mummy. Act glad to see a fellow."

Barry never did discover what it was that brought Old Justin back to Mexico that September. Nor did he really care. It was enough to have Diane there. They renewed at once their casual relationship.

Barry was so happy that he forgot to tell himself that he wasn't falling in love, that he didn't have a chance with a girl so far above him.

They spent the last evening together on the desert. There was a moon and a gentle wind. Diane said suddenly: "You love it here, don't you, Barry? I mean, the desert."

He nodded. "It gets into your blood after awhile."

"I know," she agreed. "I've heard my grandfather, Elijah Humphrey, say the same thing. Grandfather was a prospector, you know. It was he who discovered this mine. He didn't have a cent up until then. He didn't have anything but the faith of a good woman."

"His wife?" Barry asked. Diane nodded. "They were very happy together. She loved the desert, too." She paused and turned to face him. "I—guess that's why I love it. It's in my blood. At any rate, I insisted that father bring me back with him this time."

It wasn't until the next day, after Diane and her father had gone, that Barry thought about the conversation again. It seemed to him strange and a little incongruous—that story about Old Elijah. He went into the superintendent's office and asked Charlie Craig about Old Elijah. Charlie had known the old boy.

"Sure," Charlie said. "Elijah loved her and he didn't have a cent. She was the daughter of one of the state's wealthiest men. He waited quite awhile and then he up and proposed, as a sort of last resort. He told her he didn't have a dime, but that he guessed if she loved him they could get along."

Barry's heart pounded. "Did Diane know that's the way it was?"

"Sure she did. I've told her that story a dozen times."

The next day Barry took the train for New York.

New Lifesaving Technique Now in Use

NEW ARTIFICIAL RESPIRATION TECHNIQUE, the Nielsen "back-pressure arm-lift" method, which has now been adopted as standard by the American Red Cross, the Armed Forces and the National Safety Council, is demonstrated in these scenes from a new motion picture, "Seconds Count," produced by the Aina Casualty and Surety Company. The 10-minute movie, which portrays a step-by-step demonstration of the Nielsen method, may be obtained without charge for showings by contacting local Aina representatives or through the company's public education department at Hartford, Conn. The "back-pressure arm-lift" method increases chances of revival since it pulls fresh air into lungs as well as expelling air from them. In administering it, rescuer rocks forward exerting pressure on victim's back (top photo) and then rocks backwards grasping victim's arms (bottom photo), repeating cycle 10 to 12 times a minute.

Tips on Traffic Safety

By CHARLES F. CARPENTIER
Secretary of State

Hypnotism is not practiced exclusively by fellows with deep-set eyes, bushy eyebrows and Van Dyke beards. Highway can hypnotize you, too.

Traffic safety experts tell of many cases of "highway hypnosis," such as the instance where a driver who had followed another car for many miles became so accustomed to seeing it in front of him he drove his own car off the road when the other car left the highway, but then failed to stop when the leading car did and smashed into it from the rear, or of occasions where drivers have seen straight, clear stretches of road ahead of them for so long the condition became impressed upon them to such an extent that they failed to see a dangerous situation when one developed.

Monotony is the cause of it all, the same as the effect of a hypnotist's constant repeating of phrases like, "You are sleepy." Guard against "highway hypnosis." Don't try to drive too long at one stretch. Stop, get out of your car, walk around a little. You will be refreshed and better able to control yourself and your car.

Farmer's Question Corner

PREPARED BY American Foundation
For Animal Health

WHAT ABOUT Calf PARASITES?

Q: Are parasites a very serious problem in young calves?

A: Yes. They are considerably more of a problem in calves than in older animals.

Q: Which internal parasites cause the most trouble?

A: Nodular or stomach worms, coccidia, threadworm, lungworms, and hookworms.

Q: How can owners tell if calves have such parasites?

A: The calves look unthrifty in spite of good rations. Scouring, anemia and loss of weight are other symptoms.

Q: What can farmers do to protect young stock against internal parasites?

A: The main steps are: Drain or fence off low wet areas, where parasites are commonly found. Provide clean, fresh drinking water. Avoid overstocking pastures. Practice pasture rotation to break the life cycle of parasites. Keep young animals away from older stock and contaminated pastures. Follow sanitation and good feeding practices.

Q: Is there any medical treatment?

A: Yes, but it depends on the type of infestation and the condition of the affected animals. A veterinarian can best advise what to do.

Q: What external parasites affect young calves?

A: Insects such as mites, ticks, flies, lice and fleas all give trouble. They can best be controlled by cleaning up and treating infested premises, and by using proper insecticides on the animals.

Do you know what this car can do?

WORLD'S ONLY
VERTICAL VALVE V8

It can set you atingle with thrill.
It can move from zero to legal speed quicker and quieter than any Buick before it—and with the utter smoothness of a gull in glide—because this is a 1953 Buick with the spectacular getaway of Twin-Turbine Dynaflo.
It can loaf easily up a long steep hill—swoop instantly ahead when there's safe passing to be done—or whisper along at highway pace with throttle barely open—because this is the Buick powered with the world's most advanced V8 engine, with record-high compression of 8.5 to 1.

It can surround you with comfort, luxury, restful ease.

It can velvet a rough road with its even softer all-coil-spring cushioning—track true on curves with its solid torque-tube steadiness—handle like a flyrod with its Power Steering—gentle to a precise halt with its Power Brakes.

And it can seat you in the superb comfort of true spaciousness—because this big and brawny beauty is the Buick SUPER Riviera Sedan—roomiest six-passenger sedan made in America.

Above all, this car can give you supreme value—more room, comfort, power and thrill for the money than you can find elsewhere.

Why not come in and see it, drive it, compare it? We'll be happy to arrange matters.

BRANDES FORCED AIR BASEBOARD HEATING

(RESIDENTIAL and COMMERCIAL)

Brandes Radiant Perimeter heating is a different method of heat application than that which is commonly in use. Brandes Base heating can be more clearly defined as a method of heating which intercepts cold air and drafts at their source and neutralizes them at their point of entry into the room, which is at the outside wall or walls of the room. It combines the best features of hot water baseboard with best features of air conditioning.

In contrast to register methods of warm air heating as we now know it, the Wall Base method of heating will, if properly installed, ELIMINATE cold room corners, cold floors, cold air masses falling off wall and window areas, hot and cold blasts of air from registers, because there is no possibility of air blowing on room occupants; the blower can be set to cut in at a low temperature and operate until a low temperature is reached at the furnace without complaints of cold air moving about the room. It is ideally suited for use in continuous air circulation installations.

Wall Base heating has completed many heating seasons in ALL TYPES of homes in climates where outside temperatures frequently fall to twenty below zero and lower, and has rendered complete satisfaction in every way. Wall Base is so constructed that air as it leaves the Base passes through a directional orifice which positively directs the air away from the wall area so that it does not impinge on the wall. Air impingement therefore is impossible. Because of the base construction air cannot be discharged directly on the wall surface.

ECONOMICAL — NO DRAFTS — UNIFORM HEAT — REPLACES WOODEN BASEBOARD FREEDOM OF FURNITURE PLACEMENT — IMMEDIATE INSTALLATION

Twelve Thousand Girls To Attend Girls State

Opportunity to learn how to handle the machinery of democratic government by actually operating a miniature state government of their own will be given to approximately 12,000 high school girls this summer at Girls States sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary, according to Mrs. Joseph E. Horton, Girls State chairman of Antioch American Legion Auxiliary unit.

Girls States will be sponsored by the Auxiliary in every state and the Panama Canal zone. A majority of them will be held on the campus of a college or university and will be in session for one week. The girls attending will be selected for potential leadership qualities from among those who have completed their third year of high school.

The local high school will be represented at the Illinois Girls State by Miss Wendy Midgley. The Illinois Girls State will be in session at McMurray College, Jacksonville, from June 16 to 25th.

"Giving practical and intensive training to girls who are potential leaders in local, state and national affairs of the future is the purpose of the American Legion Auxiliary's Girls States," Mrs. Horton explained. "As soon as the girls arrive, they form political parties, draft platforms and begin the business of nominating candidates for the various state offices. An election is held, after a spirited campaign, and the functions of executive, legislative and judicial branches of the government carried out."

"Two girls from each Girls State are chosen to attend Girls Nation, sponsored by the Auxiliary in Washington, D. C. each year for the study and practice over national government. Boys States and Boys Nation, sponsored by the American Legion, provide the same training for selected high school boys."

To Attend Conference
Mrs. O. R. Kresse, lay delegate, and Mrs. Elmer Hunter, reserve delegate, will represent the Antioch Methodist church at the 114th session of the Rock River Annual conference of the church at Sterling, Ill., June 23-26. Bishop Charles W. Brashares will preside.
